

TALKING WITH CHILDREN ABOUT RACISM AND OTHER BIASES

“My child is noticing differences among his classmates and I’m not sure if I know how to talk about race and class.”

Challenging the roots of bias and oppression is one of the integral parts of nonviolent child raising. In this interactive workshop, participants will learn how to apply the tools of nonviolent child raising when examining these topics with children. Through a combination of instruction, guided discussion and experiential activities, adults will build the self-awareness and the capacity to listen that is necessary to help children develop their own sense of social justice.

Saturday
May 30, 2015
1:30pm-4:30pm

Fee: $30 per person
$45 per couple

Location: 1226 N. Alvarado St.
Los Angeles, 90026

Register online at echoparenting.org
by clicking on Registration Center

Or contact Kim Pesenti at
(213) 484-6676 ext 319
or kpesenti@echoparenting.org.

Seating is limited.
Registration closes May 23rd.

Pre-arranged childcare available upon request.